POETRY.

COME HOME, FATHER.

We have listened to many eloquent and touching appeals from the pulpit and rostrum, but few have moved us more than this simple ballad, by H. C. Work, as set to music by the author.

Father, dear father, come home with me now!

The clock in the steeple strikes one; You said you were coming right home from the shop

As soon as your day's work was done; Our fire has gone out—our house is all dark; And mother's been waiting since tea,

With poor little Bessie so sick in her arms, And no one to help her but me.

Come home! come home! come home! Please, father, dear father, come home!

Father, dear father, come home with me now!

The clock in the steeple strikes two; The night has grown cold—and Bessie is worse—

But he has been calling for you. Indeed he is worse—Ma says he will die, Perhaps before morning shall dawn!

And this is the message me to bring— "Come quickly, or he will be gone."

Come home! come home! come home! Please, father, dear father, come home!

Father, dear father, come home with me now!

The clock in the steeple strikes three; The house is so lonely, the hours are so long For poor weeping mother and me!

Yes, we are alone—poor Bessie is dead, And gone with the angels of light; And these were the very last words that he said:

"I want to kiss Papa good night."

Come home! come home! come home! Please father, dear father, come home!

Hear the sweet voice of the child,

Which the night winds repeat as they roam; Oh! who could resist this most plaintive of prayers,

"Please father, dear father, come home!"

THE LITTLE MAID AND THE LAWYER.

"They say, little maid," quoth lawyer Brown, I'm the cleverest man in all the town."

"Heigh-ho," says she, "What's that to me?"

"But they say, little maid," quoth lawyer Brown,

"You're the prettiest girl in all the town."

Says she, "If they do, What's that to you?"

"They say, little maid," quoth lawyer Brown, "I'm the richest man in all the town."

The Douglas Lecture.

At our last issue, we had not had time to canvass the public sentiment in reference to the lecture. We are happy to state, that no lecture in Ypsilanti ever gave better satisfaction than did Mr. Douglas, and should he visit our city again, Hewitt Hall will not hold the people. It was a calm, dispassionate eulogy on the good President. It was a clear and beautiful analysis of his character—Abraham Lincoln could ask for no better or abler eulogist than Frederick Douglass. He developed the humble nativity of Mr. Lincoln, and how, step by step, as the architect of his own fortunes, he came to be President. As a farmer, if he wanted an axe, he made it; as a boatman, a raft, he hewed it out. Take him out upon the wide ocean and throw him in, and he would buffet the waves and man-fully come to land. He was a safe man, and what is very rare, a safe politician. He did not enter upon a measure rashly and then be compelled to back down again. As President, he was first sure that he was right, and then that the people were educated up to the point of sustaining him—and thus entrenched he stood firm as a rock. He completely riddled the plan of the Johnsonians that Johnson is following in the lead of Lincoln. Lincoln's policy was all performance, with no previous high-sounding promises. He did more than he promised. Johnson promises much and does little. He proclaimed himself the Moses of the colored people, and turned out their Pharaoh. If no one else would lead them into the land of Canaan, he would; but scarcely was he warm in the Presidential chair, when he tells them that their liberty consists in the right to work for a living. No man fiercer than he in denouncing rebels—treason must be made odious; scarcely had the echo of these fierce declarations died away before we see him placing rebels in high positions. (To attempt to bolster up the Johnson policy by linking it with that of Lincoln, is abuse, slander, and a de-secration of his honored name. Mr. Lincoln told him, Douglas, that manhood and suffrage should be accorded, and if he lived, would be accorded, to every colored man who had home arms, and every one who could read. He thrillingly described the deep damnation of his taking off. He most thoroughly unmasked the Southern character, and showed how faithfully Booth mirrored forth that character. There were many exceedingly telling points. He visited Abraham Lincoln. Perhaps his hearers would like to know how he came to do so. The story was a short one. Mr. Lincoln invited him. He visited Mr. Johnson because he did not invite him. He portrayed the moral courage of Mr. Lincoln in doing so, showing the significance of the act. Mr. Lincoln was the only man who did not remind him, in some way, that he was not a white man—The tallest ally, the one that brought down the house most emphatically, eliciting cheer after cheer, was a take off on old Buck.
The feignish slaveholders had poisoned Harrison and Taylor, and in order to give place to a younger and more vigorous rebel, Beckenridge, they undertook to fix him at the National Hotel. "But poison at last met its match!" Mr. Douglas has been traveling all over the North, and says that the people are with Congress, that Mr. Johnson cannot succeed in his policy, and that there is much of hope in the future.

Trade.

Last Saturday, though right in the most busy season of the year, our streets were cleverly filled. The shelves of our merchants are richly laden with goods. We announced a few weeks since that A. Williams had just brought on a large stock of goods. They have gone off like hot cakes, and another large supply is on hand and coming. Gross & Co. have returned from New York with a big stock, bound to make large sales and quick returns. S. Post & Co. have fitted up their store in fine style. It is now the most commodious store in town. (A description of the next week.) Post has made extensive purchases and is selling very low—good sheeting at 12 1/2 cts. a yard.
Grocery trade is improving. Platt, at the grocery emporium, is putting his best foot forward, as usual. Brooks has a steady current of customers. Gorton, Williams, & Co. have sold out to Chas. E. Foote. He is adding generously to the stock, and means that the Red Grocery shall maintain its prestige.
See advertisement. McCormick, Wallace & Hearst are doing a good business at the Depot—See advertisement.
Milkery business is in the very heyday of its triumphs. Mrs. Carr is doing splendidly.
Mrs. Hall, a new recipient of public favor, has made a favorable beginning—see her advertisement.
In the shoe trade, W. B. Hewitt is doing a big thing—E. G. Boyce & Co. have a fine run of custom, and Klock is up to the times.
Otto don't mean the Depot trade shall fall behind.

nance in such cases made and provided. Adopted.

From com. on Fire Department, to whom was referred the petitions of C.
Cornwell, Edwards & Cooper, and Bickford & Camp, for leave to erect sheds, &c. upon their premises, reports in writing, recommending the granting of the prayers of the petitioners, and submitting the following resolutions in relation thereto:

Resolved, That permission is hereby given to C. Cornwell to erect a two story frame addition, 18 by 22 feet, on the east side of the Swift house (so called) on Huron St. Adopted.

Resolved, That the prayer of Edwards & Cooper be granted as to the erection of sheds, not exceeding ten feet in height, on each of the lots mentioned in their petition, and that such permis-ion is hereby given; provided, that no such shed shall be erected on the line of any street contiguous to said streets. Adopted.

ACCOMMODATION.

C. D. COLEMAN'S NEWS DEPOT is indeed an accommodation to the inhabitants of the East side. There can be found at all times the daily and weekly metropolitan journals for the gentlemen, Godey, Demorest, Peterson, &c. for the ladies, and magazines, illustrated papers, and all kinds of reading matter for all. Mail matter left there will be delivered in time for all the mails, thus saving a great deal of travel. He also keeps stationary, cigars and tobacco in great variety.

Important Improvement.

River St. leading to Highland Cemetery is being graded down, and a culvert has been put in at the deep gully, making it safe. Get a sidewalk up the street and nice shade trees on either side and it will become the most desirable location in town.

The advertiser, having been restored to health in a few weeks by a very simple remedy after having suffered for years with a severe lung affection and that dread disease consumption—is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it he will send a copy of the prescription used, free of charge, with directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, colds and all throat and lung affections. The only object of the advertiser in sending the prescription is to benefit the afflicted and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable, and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing.

FARM & HOUSEHOLD.

WASHING SHEEP.

Wool buyers appear to be forming combinations against unwashed wool and seem inclined, or rather determined to make very heavy deductions from the weight of unwashed fleeces. It is therefore necessary for farmers to be very careful in having their sheep well washed, and this cannot be done unless an abundant supply of water is available. On the generality of farms there are creeks and streams which may be easily diverted into suitable places for performing this operation, for some parts can be selected where the water may be deepened by a dam and a sluice set up so to create a waterfall which is a very good plan of cleaning the wool. After the sheep have been sufficiently dipped and the soiled parts well rubbed, a few seconds under the spout will be a good finish to the operation. It is a mistake to wash sheep too early in the season, as the wool will be soiled or gummed before shearing can be performed. It is worse than a mistake to shear too early, before the weather is sufficiently warm and settled to permit the warm covering of the sheep to be removed without injury to their health. Many sheep have been destroyed by cold weather setting in after shearing time.

Formerly June used to be the month for sheep shearing, now we see "Festivals" coming off in the first week of May, and it is said that the earlier sheep are shorn the better will their condition be in the Summer heavier will be their covering before the ensuing Winter, but these advocates for early shearing have ignored the process of washing altogether and content themselves with obtaining very heavy fleeces; but this mode of proceeding is almost "played out," deductions being now made from the weight of unwashed wool.

If there is a good fall of water into a large vat, washing may be performed by men standing on each side of the vat without going into the water, but nothing can beat the time-honored system of washing sheep in a strong stream in some place where a fall can be obtained, and a good sandy bottom. The wool on the bellies and flanks is always much more soiled and harder to be washed than that on the rest of the body. This must be rubbed between the hands until the st. ins are removed. When water is very cold it is generally too hard for washing purposes of any kind, but especially for cleansing wool.

The water in which sheep are washed should be from three to four feet deep, and the current should be strong enough to carry away the water as fast as it is soiled. The operation is best performed by two men standing opposite to each other and holding the sheep by the thighs and shoulders. A man on the bank catches a sheep and throws it on its back in the water, right between the two washers, who are watching to catch the animal by the legs before it can turn. These dip the sheep repeatedly, turning it from side to side, and watching each other's motions in order to keep time in the operation. It may be necessary to state that sometimes sheep are injured in washing by awkwardness or carelessness of unpracticed or inexperienced men. In such cases the damage is done by "sawing," which means working against each other, one trying to dip the sheep on one side while the other is trying to do the reverse. When very large flocks are to be washed, it will be necessary to have four, and sometimes eight men in the water, or at least ready to relieve each other in the operation. Sheep may be shorn five or six days after they are washed. Some flock masters keep their sheep unshorn for a longer period, as it is considered that the heat of sun extracts the oil from the skin, and increases the weight of the fleece. Well-washed sheep are sometimes soiled by being driven over dusty roads. Care should be taken not to shear until the wool is perfectly dry, as buyers are down on damp wool. The operation of shearing may be interrupted by showers, to guard against this contingency, if the weather appear doubtful, they should be housed the night before shearing day, and if the weather breaks the work can be done inside. - Western Rural.

MEDICAL.

GOOD NEWS AT LAST!

LET THE AFFLICTED READ!

Some physicians require to be told the nature of your disease - the ENGLISH BOTANIC PHYSICIAN does not. His perfect knowledge of the human system enables him to describe the disease without any information from the patient, to explain its origin, cause, and to guarantee its cure. And what is more valuable still, he will honestly and frankly tell whether you can be cured or not. This will satisfy your mind, and save you expense, time, trouble, and disappointment. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, it will save your health, and what is better than all, it will save your life from being shortened by wrong treatment. His examinations are made without any information from the patient; therefore he thoroughly understands the physical condition and Phenomena of development, without which he never could have performed so many astonishing cures. It should be remembered that this Botanic Physician performs cures thought impossible by any good healer, and that if you are "glad, you will go and consult DR. RAPHAEL, the Botanic Physician. All his communications, and his cures are strictly private and confidential. - Medical Journal.

FACTS ARE STUBBORN THINGS!

Hear what the Philadelphia correspondent says in the Commercial, Philadelphia, Delaware, 9th of April, 1866.

An English gentleman, formerly connected with the British Army, and who styles himself an English Botanic Physician, has of late gained an extensive reputation for his skill in curing all manner of complaints.

Some of his patients I have consulted with, and they pronounce his remedies and mode of treatment as very superior. Some have been restored as if by magic. The remedy he used is distilled by himself from various herbs possessing rare curative properties.

While feeling in this manner, he has been the subject of a thorough study of the effects produced by certain medicinal roots and herbs on all manner of diseases, and has found a sure and speedy remedy for all the "ills that flesh is heir to." His practice is already extensive, and is daily increasing. In the complaints to which females are subject
